Chicago Board of Trade.

Chicago, Nov. 2.—Argentine radio tented to put the wheat bulls at a disadvantage although word from Buenos Aires that dry weather had retarded, but to a brief rally. Assumptions that imports of wheat at San Francisco from Australia would be late enough counted also in favor of the bulls. Builles there were evidence that the British government had reduced the cost of wheat to England to a material extent, opening imports here which ranged from 40¢ a bushel to 50¢ a bushel. May wheat at 50¢ a bushel was followed by a moderate general move and minor reaction all around to index records in funds.

The index in wheat was increased 2½ to 104½ per bushel, with December at 48½, April at 48½ and May at 51½. Gold and silver both moved slightly upward while copper, lead and zinc were unchanged.

Corn moved with slight differences, with the market being held by a continued quiet after spilling its gas to the air after the last four hours of a little and then disappeared.

Later, corn was moderately up again in some areas where demand gained, while others showed unusual gains. The market was moving at 48½ to 50½ cents.

Poisonous Spring Baffles Experts

The discovery of a venomous spring which appears to be contained in part of the fine sand which comprises the soil of the valley of the Colorado River has caused much alarm over the safety of the natural sources of water. It was announced by experts here that the spring is located in the Colorado desert tract or the Carson national forest.

Every one in a state of mind to get stock does after tasting of this spring. The rest of the time the water seems harmless. Within days of running down the cause of the trouble and decide a remedy. In total forest ranger said samples of the water to the government experts. Analysis shows a strikingly large amount of nitrate and a long list of other salts also many poisons but in such minute quantities as to seem negligible. Do these substances periodically form some deadly combination? This is the question which puzzles experts. The next move, according to the district ranger here, is a study of symptoms of the poisoned animals. By this means it is hoped to throw some light on the present enigma.

As the dark-eyed and languishing Mexican señoritas of aristocratic families, Enid Markey has an especially fitting role in "Lieutenant Danny U. S. A." a new Triangle offering soon to be seen here.

In the brief year of the Triangle's existence this lovely little star has played an extraordinary variety of parts, disclosing an adaptability that means real gifts and artistic growth—but this latest role in which she plays opposite William Desmond not only fits her in its physical requirements to an unusual degree but it gives her a severe test in acting ability.

Toward the end of this intensely dramatic story she is in the power of "Polar the Butcher," a villainous Mexican bandit leader, and he gloats over his captive while he makes her sit him at his own table. She is overcome for time, even though it means sitting him with her own slender hand. But all the while she must keep him guessing. Her pride makes her sit her head high, even in the presence of worse than death, and others in a similar lot her own—she will serve her purpose. Her beauty with a smile and sweet round gestures, and partly sharing the same qualities she gains the love of the cast, especially her co-star, "Lieutenant Danny," a soldier with a polished way of talking and a smile of irresistible charm.

Also, Markey comes in "Perils of Pastime" as a comical comedy.

Look for Markey in "Female Agents" and "The Mystery Doctor" before long.
